FAMILY GOVERNMENT has taken the place of international relations as a field of interest for Irene Hoffmann. She and her husband, Dr. George Hoffmann share a mutual interest in politics, and their children, Jill and David, are not too young to receive the benefits of its practical applications in the home.

Wife Shares Husband's Career, Family Interests

Not every wife knows as much about her husband's profession as does Mrs. George Hoffmann, wife of one of Midwestern University's new government professors. Irene Hoffmann's field of study is government. After receiving the bachelor of arts degree from New Hampshire State University she was employed by the Central Intelligence Agency. Dr. Hoffmann is a research department in the Russian intelligence news broadcasts.

Although Mrs. Hoffmann has an interest in government relations, she has an increasing interest in part of politics through her husband's teaching. Along with American government, he conducts a class in legislation at MU.

Irene Hoffmann's main concerns now, however, are her family and home. The couple has two children, David 2 and Jill. They live at 4684 University. Mrs. Hoffmann is a housewife who will be a housewife someday. Mrs. Hoffmann misses the tall trees of New Hampshire and the west more than anything else. The couple came here only one month ago from Illinois where Dr. Hoffmann was employed by the state legislation council. Before that they lived in Springfield, Ohio, where he taught at Wittenberg College.

Most Texans are appalled at learning that Yankee hamburgers consist of just a bun and meat. On the other hand, Mrs. Hoffmann described Texas burgers as tasting like a combination salad. She said she usually removes some of the lettuce before eating them.

However, along with most new arrivals, Irene Hoffmann is finding the people very friendly and the climate hot. "I'm looking forward to the pleasant winter," she said.
